

Nursing: Master of Science in Nursing at Rush University

Monmouth College has an affiliated program with the Rush University College of Nursing. After earning an undergraduate degree from Monmouth, qualified students can gain entry to the Generalist Entry Master's Program. The goal of this program is to prepare students to be leaders in the clinical setting. This program consists of 6 quarter (1.5 years) of classroom and clinical work and one quarter spent in a residency experience. More information on the Rush program can be found at http://www.rushu.rush.edu/nursing/pos/GEM_pos.html

Courses

To qualify for the Rush nursing program, a course of study consisting of several science classes will need to be completed at Monmouth. All courses must be complete with a grade of C or better. These courses are as follows:

Biology	Monmouth Course
Human Anatomy	BIOL 204
Human Physiology	BIOL 204
Microbiology	BIOL 302

(BIOL 150 (General Biology) and BIOL 200 (Cell Biology) also are required since these courses are prerequisites for the upper level biology classes.)

Chemistry	Monmouth Course
General Chemistry	CHEM 140
Organic	CHEM 228

Psychology	Monmouth Course
Introduction Psychology	PSYC101
Development, Child Psychology	PSYC231

Mathematics	Monmouth Course
Statistics	MATH106 or MATH207

A nutrition course (Normal Nutrition) must also be completed at another institution. (This type of course is offered at many community colleges, and is currently being offered as an experimental course at Monmouth.)

While many students intending to apply to the nursing program select a major in the sciences, a student may choose any major field of study as long as the courses listed above are completed.
